80/20 Suppression

80/20 suppression removes rows or columns whose absolute values do not contribute to the top 80% of results. It then summarizes the removed rows or columns into a single row or column named Other.

When you apply 80/20 suppression, the data for the cells is sorted in descending order and a total is made of the absolute values. Then the sorted values are added until the cumulative total is 80%t of the total. If the last value added to the cumulative total appears in more than one cell, all those cells are considered part of the 80%.

Simply click the 80/20 suppression button to toggle the suppression off and on.
